

Ignite Innovation with Human-Centred Design

Dear Learner,

Are you looking for ways to employ innovative problem-solving solutions at work or improve your company's products, work processes or services? Our training programmes at NP's Human-Centred Design Institute (HCDI) can help you.

Sign up now for our Human-Centred Design (HCD) Practitioner Certification Programme. In just nine weeks, gain key skills you need to help you identify the right problems to solve and design solutions that people want and need. This course, designed in partnership with the LUMA Institute, will teach you HCD skills and equip you to tackle the challenges you face in your daily work creatively, collaboratively and with confidence as a new way of working.

Why learn Human-Centred Design?

Here are some ways in which Human-Centred Design can be highly beneficial for you and your organisation.

Create unique human-centred design agendas to cater to customers' needs and requirements

Apply expert-created, tried-and-tested combinations of human-centred design methods to address common workplace challenges

Benefit from a unique design framework that optimises a variety of your work processes with practical approaches

Learn a common problem-solving language leading to faster, better, and more successful collaborations

LUMA Certified Human-Centred Design Practitioner

"The LUMA HCD Practitioner program is a unique upskilling learning experience for any career professional looking for a modern, intelligent and effective framework to supplement a variety of work processes like work/design sprints, agile methodologies, scrum-based processes, federated learning/distribution and so much more."

- Leon, Creative Director, Prudential
